- the mujibhas and chibwidos had their defined roles like logistics

- Ubuntu provided a sense of self identity, self-respect, achievement and eventually enabling to deal with our problems in a positive manner and building of strong values
- Spirit of camaradie was established. The spirit established and the spirit emanated from the earlier nationalist movement slogan "mwana wevhu" was a catchword (whether you from Murehwa, Tsholotsho, chipinge etc.)

(c) Show how colonial misconceptions on National heritage can be overcome.

- have a well-documented history e.g. the launching of the African book on the history of African liberation movements by the African Union
- establishment of a historical museum
- encouraging independent writers to gather information
- teaching in schools our colonial history
- avoid politicization of colonial history in order to gain political mileage
- to protect our colonial shrines e.g. heroes acre, chimoio, freedom camp
- our embassies to have strong information and research departments that also include our colonial past and the national liberation movement
- Good governance practices so that our erstwhile colonial do not distort the ethos of the liberation struggle. Initiatives such as NEPAD (New Partnership for African Development) had tried to deal with issues of governance by putting in place Peer Review Mechanisms, but this seems to be dying due to resistance from autocrats.
